

Antonio Espinoza

aespinoza@iastate.edu | (319)-123-4567 | linkedin.com/in/aespinoza

December 5, 202X

Dear Hiring Manager:

I am writing to submit my application for the Editorial Assistant position at Little, Brown Spark and the Hachette Book Group that I came across on LinkedIn. I am currently an English major in my fourth year at Iowa State University and have a strong, developed passion for reading and learning. My passion coincides with Little, Brown Spark's mission of sparking ideas and change, and the prospect of being able to help deliver that change thrills me. My written and verbal communication skills, my ability for detail-oriented analysis, and my experience in independent research are evidence for my being an exceptional candidate for this position.

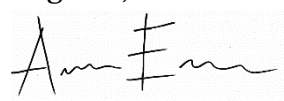

The wide variety of college courses I have taken have sharpened both my written and verbal communication skills. From creating and delivering presentations in my Written, Oral, Visual, and Electronic Composition class to helping organize my group's topics in a debate in a political science class, I have developed strong verbal communication skills. A class in creative writing as well as American literature introduced me to new writing techniques and further enforced my writing proficiency. These communication skills will aid me in articulating ideas in team meetings and professionally interacting and corresponding with your authors and their agents

My ability to perform a detailed analysis stems from studying different forms of writing. Analyzing and picking out meanings from short stories, novels, and movies in my literary study classes have honed my analytical skills and enabled me to examine the finer details. My strict attention to detail and underlying meanings has sparked my creativity and broadened my imagination. Therefore, reviewing book proposals, drafting descriptive copy, and taking diligent notes are tasks I am well suited for.

Finally, I have undertaken several research projects and gained valuable insight into conducting independent research. Finding valid and useful sources, as well as checking their credibility was integral in my research process for my 400-level history paper. Without this skill, I risked incorrectly portraying key historical events. Performing research on book sales or nonfiction manuscript topics interest me as well as suits my skills.

My writing expertise, sharp attention to detail, and my research experience qualify me for taking on the responsibilities of Editorial Assistant at Little, Brown Spark. Please see my attached resume for more details. Thank you for your consideration and I greatly anticipate a chance for an interview.

Regards,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Antonio Espinoza', with a stylized flourish at the end.

Antonio Espinoza

About the job

Summary

Little, Brown Spark is seeking an Editorial Assistant to support the VP, Publisher, Editor-in-Chief and VP, Editorial Director. This is an entry-level role in our editorial department, but one with opportunities for learning and growth.

Little, Brown Spark's mission is to publish books that spark ideas and change. Our authors are experts and thought leaders in the fields of health, lifestyle, business, psychology, self-help, and science. Our hope is that Little, Brown Spark readers will learn something new, improve their lives, and inspire others around them.

How To Apply

In order to be considered, please submit both a resume AND cover letter.

Essential Duties & Responsibilities

- Interact professionally with authors and their literary agents, as well as internal departments within Little, Brown and Hachette, including design, publicity, marketing, production, sales.
- Draft and circulate contract forms, process check requests, and send out payments and executed contracts.
- Draft descriptive copy that will be used to explain books to the sales and marketing departments.
- Attend and take notes at editorial meetings, and attend marketing and sales meetings as required.
- Review book proposals and submissions from literary agents and writers and write analysis and be prepared for potential further discussion.
- Research book sales using internal and external databases.
- Participate in brainstorming meetings and share ideas for books.
- Perform administrative duties, including: scheduling, photocopying, handling mail, filing, directing/responding to inquiries, ordering office supplies, maintaining book archives, misc. research projects, etc.

The Successful Candidate Will

KNOWLEDGE, SKILLS AND ABILITIES REQUIRED:

- Be passionate about books
- Be open minded and curious about nonfiction.
- Be passionate about the creative process and sharing ideas
- Possess excellent verbal and written communications skills.

- Be highly organized, capable of multi-tasking, and detail-oriented.
- Be able to work effectively with colleagues at every level of seniority.
- Be self-directed and able to work independently.
- Demonstrate imagination, creativity, and original thinking.
- Be comfortable using email, calendar management, and file management tools.
- Be familiar with Word, Outlook, PowerPoint and Excel or other like tools.

Equal Opportunity Statement / Compensation & Benefits Disclosure

As a leading book publisher, we believe that including and representing diverse voices in all aspects of our business is fundamental to what we do. Hachette Book Group provides equal employment opportunities to all employees and applicants for employment and prohibits discrimination and harassment of any type without regard to race, color, religion, age, sex, national origin, disability status, genetics, protected veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, or any other characteristic protected by federal, state or local laws. This policy applies to all terms and conditions of employment, including recruiting, hiring, placement, promotion, termination, layoff, recall, transfer, leaves of absence, compensation and training.

This position has a minimum compensation of $45,000. Salary will vary based on a number of factors including skills, experience, and location — talk with your recruiter to learn more. Our comprehensive U.S. benefit offerings include medical, dental, vision, life insurance, LTD, 401(k), and more.